Let the light shine in – high rafters and tactical cut-outs of the walls in the lobby welcome any guest, client or employee into Neff Associates' office

David Neff shows his "novel" interest in business, sports and retro-art; pictured here is a shot overlooking Neff's office, complete with his collection of bobble heads along the perimeter.

Great minds think alike in Neff Associates' conference table which features such as a modern, glass table and chairs by Knoll Philadelphia. Let the creativity flow!

"The Novelty Building" in Old City, Philadelphia

Neff Associates has occupied the fourth floor of "The Novelty Building" in old City for 10 years. The original tenant was a toy/novelty wholesaler.

David Neff, president, Neff Associates, designed the space purposefully without full walls to the ceiling. From any point in Neff's office, a beautiful vista of the entire space can be seen. Another unique feature are the exposed brick walls. Exposed wood beams and industrial ductwork along with the 12-foot high ceilings really give it a loft feel.
